

TOWN COUNCIL IN SESSION

MATTER OF DANGEROUS RAILROAD CROSSINGS CONSIDERED.

Bids Opened and Awarded for 1000 Perch of Crushed Stone for Streets.

The Town Council held their regular May meeting on Tuesday evening of last week. The meeting was called to order by Pres. Hamilton, minutes of previous meeting were read and approved.

The policeman were first discussed and motion prevailed that the chairman of Highway Committee be instructed to request Burgess Holtzworth to insist upon a performance of duties according to the instructions of the Burgess and in the event of any failure on the part of the policeman that they be brought before council for an overhauling.

Digging permits and the disregard of the conditions of the ordinance was discussed without definite action. It was said citizens dig up the streets and fill up the ditches without any tamping and do not keep the ridge or hollow in good condition for following 13 months as ordinance requires and that the streets become rough, with hollows and bumps, and if anything is said to the offenders they pay no attention. The Council were unanimous in their view that citizens should live up to the laws of the town but how to compel them did not clearly appear.

Councilman Butt called attention to the railroad crossings and the danger as illustrated by the recent accident at Carlisle street and was of the opinion that watchmen or gates should be established at every crossing. R. E. Wible, Esq., attorney for Borough, was of the opinion that under existing laws the railroad could not be compelled to maintain watchmen or gates. The matter and the danger was discussed at length and the motion of Councilman Butt was unanimously adopted for the appointment of a committee of two to discover means for the abatement of the danger and the establishment of some safety guards at the crossings. Councilmen Butt and Trostle were appointed as the committee.

Councilman Kitzmiller reported crap shooting under the arc lights on a Sunday night. No action was taken after discussion.

The request by Joseph Galbraith, made through his attorney, Edward A. Weaver, for better alley west of West street, was referred to the Highway Committee.

The pavements made by some residents of York street along York pike to bridge and the absence of pavements by other lot owners was discussed and referred to the Highway Committee.

The moving picture shows pay $2 license each month and many of the councilmen were of the opinion that the amount was too low and 50 cents a night should be charged. No action was taken.

Councilman Beck moved that the ordinance relating to the running of wash water into the streets and alleys be enforced and offenders be punished according to law. Motion carried.

The proposed extension of the limits of the Borough was brought up but deferred until the next meeting.

Three bids were presented by the committee having charge of the matter for furnishing crushed stone for the streets. M. and T. E. Farrel bid for quarrying and crushing rock 75 cts. a ton. B. F. Deardorff bid for quarrying, crushing and delivering $1.25 a ton. John C. Shealer's bid did not cover crushing the rock and was not considered. After the matter was discussed and councilmen being of the opinion that the crushed stone could be hauled cheaper by borough than contractor, the contract was awarded to M. and T. E. Farrel for 1,000 perch of crushed stone.

Council adjourned until Tuesday evening, May 11.

Mountain Fire.

A fierce mountain fire raged on the South Mountain in the vicinity of Hunters Run for several days last week. It is estimated that 1500 acres of timber have burned. It is thought the fire had its origin from the flames that devastated the Cameron estate, Holly Springs. The clay works near Hunters Run were shut down and the men were put to work fighting the flames as well as a large number of the employees of the South Mountain Mining and Iron Co. Altogether between 80 and 90 men were engaged in extinguishing the flames and on Saturday had the fire under control. The fire spread near Laurel but no buildings were burned.

Orphans' Court.

An orphans' court was held last Monday for the confirmation of accounts and other business, all the judges being present.

Baker, for nursing and funeral expenses amounting to $50, which the Court allowed.

All the register's accounts as advertised were confirmed with the exception of two, as follows: As to the first and final account of Henry L. Bream, administrator of the estate of Susan Kuhn, an exception was filed and William McSherry, Esq., was appointed auditor to dispose of the same. Exceptions were filed to the first and final account of Howard J. Hartman, administrator c. t. a. of Henry Galbraith, deceased, and the account was continued.

The following accounts in the common pleas were confirmed: James H. Kelly, receiver of Kingsdale Canning Co.

The first and final account of E. P. Wisotzky, committee of Sarah Slaybaugh, a lunatic.

Charles McIntire, assignee of the estate of Verna V. Sanders and George W. Sanders.

P. C. Smith, Esq., assignee of the estate of Lewis Bosserman.

In the divorce case of John A. Cox vs. Minnie Cox, S. S. Neely, Esq., was appointed commissioner to take testimony and report facts.

On petition of Harry B. Slonaker, assignee of estate of Mary F. Hill, a rule was awarded to stay execution of D. B. Martin and Co. and to open judgment.

Schedules of distribution of the assigned estates of Lewis Bosserman and George W. Sanders were filed and approved.

The courts adjourned until next Monday the 17th for the hearing of arguments and other business.

Accounts as advertised were confirmed and in estate of Susan Kuhn, deceased, Wm. McSherry, Esq., was appointed auditor to dispose of exceptions and make distribution.

W. C. Sheely, Esq., was appointed auditor to dispose of exceptions to the account of Maria Helena Erter, executrix of will of Adam Erter, dec'd.

Ten Cows Condemned and Killed.

The State Livestock Sanitary Board of Pa., instructed Dr. M. Moriarty last week, to test with Tuberculin, 2 herds of Jersey cows, 37 in number, owned by J. L. Sadler, near Idaville, Huntingtown township. When the test was applied, 9 out of 20 head reacted, in the first herd, and 2 out of the 17 head, reacted in the second herd, making eleven head, reacting to the State test. Some of the animals condemned were fine milk cows. The condemned animals were appraised and slaughtered at the Fertilizer Works of Oyler & Spangler, and they were disposed of in the usual way. Mr. Sadler realized $206.00 for the ten head, one of the lot died, before the appraisement was made, and no compensation was allowed.

Dr. Moriarty quarantined a cow bitten by a mad dog some weeks ago, the cow died from the effects of Rabies last week. She was owned by Amos R. Group near Idaville.

Boy Charged with Rape.

Archibald Nagle, son of Owen H. Nagle, Superintendent of the mines of the Eagle Copper Company near Charming, was arrested last week for criminally assaulting Elsie Sprenkle, of near Fountain Dale. The boy is 16 years old, the girl 14 years and mentally is not bright. The crime is alleged to have been committed Monday evening of last week at or near the girl's home. The boy with a companion is said to have visited the Sprenkle home that evening. Information was made charging Nagle with statutory rape upon female under 16 years of age, and County Detective Wilson arrested him on Tuesday. ## THE REGULAR MONUMENT

DEDICATION WILL BRING MANY REGULAR TROOPS.

Miss Helen Taft, Daughter of President Taft, will Unveil the Monument.

The program for the dedication of the Regulars' monument at Gettysburg on the afternoon of May 31 has been announced. Immediately after the opening of the exercises at 2 p. m., President Taft will make an address. The monument will then be unveiled, after which a national salute will be fired by a battery, the troops presenting arms. Laurel wreaths will then be laid at the foot of the shaft, one under each tablet, by the senior surviving regimental or battery commander present of each arm of service or by the senior officer present of each arm. During the ceremonies the Marine Band will play.

The Secretary of War will follow with an address, placing the monument in the custody of the Gettysburg National Park Commission, the chairman of the latter, Col. John P. Nicholson, responding. Taps will then be sounded by the buglers en masse. The exercises will close with benediction.

Five companies of coast artillery have been ordered from the artillery district of Baltimore to attend the dedication at Gettysburg of the monument to the memory of the soldiers of the Regular Army who participated in the battle.

Three companies will go from Fort Howard and two from Fort McHenry. Other troops which will be at the dedication will be the Fifth United States Infantry from Plattsburg Barracks, the first squadron of the Fifteenth Cavalry and the Second Battalion of the Third Field Artillery, from Fort Meyer; the band and four companies from the district of the Delaware and three companies from the district of the Potomac.

Another feature of the program that will unquestionably be one of the biggest days of the year for Gettysburg, will be the unveiling of the monument by Miss Taft, daughter of President Taft.

D. A. R. Museum.

The local chapter of the D. A. R. held its monthly meeting on Thursday last, for the first time in the chapter's room in the First National Bank Building. The chapter aims to establish an historical library and a museum in this room. Through the kindness of Mr. Harry Himes, who has already made a loan of a number of pieces of antique furniture and bric-a-brac, of Mr. John Kiehl of valuable volumes and of contributions from members of the chapter, the room has a look of antiquity. We again ask for loans and ask everybody to feel that all loans will have the best of care. In the near future the room will be opened to visitors on certain days and all will be welcomed.

The Fair and Festival of the Citizens Band of Gettysburg on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of last week was a flattering success. There was a good attendance every evening and a crowded house the last night. The band played, the people took their suppers or ice cream and cake, fished in the pond, took chances in the books circulated by goodly number of young girls. The running off of the chances Saturday evening attracted much attention. Noah Jeffcoat, of the Furniture Factory won the buffet that was much talked about, and Miss Viola Garlach the bed. It took but a few minutes to run off all the chances articles. The gross proceeds of the Fair was about $530 and the net will be near the $400 mark.

May Concert

The College Orchestra will on Friday evening give what may be the last of the college musical events of the year. The Commencement concert is said to be doubtful, so that the May concert may be the last time our people will have a chance to hear that gifted quartette. Housknecht with violin, Sam Philson with clarinet, Ben Philson with cornet and Irvin at the piano. These four gifted musicians are in the senior class, and their graduation means a big loss to the musical organizations of the college. They are all accomplished artists in their lines, and have delighted many audiences of the town with their music, for they have never been tight with it, always willing contributors to entertainments. The orchestra deserves a crowded house upon what may be the last appearance of this gifted quartette, and will undoubtedly have what is due them.

The Secret of Fatigue.

An almost revolutionary change in the scientific attitude toward work has come from the study of the nature of fatigue. Now we know that fatigue is simply the result of a form of self-poisoning. We are being suffocated and paralyzed by our own waste products.

In short, says Woods Hutchinson in the "Cosmopolitan," fatigue is due to the clogging of the body engine by its own ashes and cinders. A practical proof of this in the human body is the restful and invigorating effect of skillful massage after violent and prolonged exercise. The explanation is simply that the muscles are assisted to empty themselves of the fatigue poisons, and circulation being at the same time stimulated these are carried away.

Why does nature allow the body engine to be clogged and "hot boxed," as it were, in this apparently shortsighted and irrational way, long before it has really exhausted its steaming power? It is a protective reaction on the part of nature, one of her greatest and most important danger signals. In other words, when you are tired it is physically time to quit; that is nature's 5 o'clock whistle.

Each particular organ or tissue makes its own fatigue poison, and this, while disabling to the particular organ or tissue which produces it, is very much less so, and in some instances scarcely at all, to the rest of the body. This is why, within limits, change of activity rests us.

This self-poisoning and specific nature of fatigue explains, of course, why we so quickly become tired by doing exactly the same thing over and over again. The particular group of muscles and the brain and nerve cells which direct their action become swamped with their own fatigue poisons.

In our best and most intelligently planned schools now the study period for any one subject has been cut down, until the maximum for children under 12 years of age is in the neighborhood of fifteen minutes. This is precisely parallel with the method now adopted by trainers in the gymnasium for building up general vigor and a symmetrically developed set of muscles.

Light dumbbells and rapid movements have taken the place of heavy weights and slow "heaving" exercises. No one set of muscles is exercised for more than a few minutes, indeed often a few seconds at a time, and every practice period must stop just short of a sensation of fatigue.

Let every one play and exercise according to his or her age and humor, so long as it is done in the open air. There are not fifteen days out of each year in our North American climate in which some outdoor sport cannot be played by those who have once got the open air habit.

Dr. Clutz on Lutheran Growth

In the address of Rev. J. A. Clutz D. D., pastor of St. James Lutheran Church of this place, at the recent Fortieth Anniversary of the Boards of Home and Foreign Missions and church extension at Harrisburg, he compared and contrasted the mission work from 1869 to present date, and presented the following figures:

"From the parochial table of 1869, which itself is a small affair compared with the parochial summaries which are now published every two years we learn that at that time the General Synod consisted of 22 district synods, 59 ministers, 997 congregations, 9,720 communicant members, 556 Lutheran Sunday schools 485 Union Sunday Schools and 71,828 scholars.

The Lutheran almanac for the year 1909 gives us 23 district synods, 1,744 congregations, 280,978 confirmed members. The latest statistics of the Sunday school report an enrollment of 244,968. What a story in growth, influence and power they tell!

"The parochial summary of 1869 contains only three columns for benevolent contributions, for education, $9,992.01; for the support of Home Missions, $14,205.02; for Foreign Missions, $3,920.20. Truly enough that was a day of small things but since that time the church has not only grown in numbers but in wealth as, so wealthy in fact, that the Lutheran people today are recognized as the richest and most prosperous body the world has ever known. It is claimed this accumulated wealth benefits only a few. All the people have shared in it, generally speaking. Of course there is much poverty want and suffering, as there always has been, and always will be. During the past year the individual contributions for the work average in amounts from $50 to $1,000. This is one feature in which our church is weak, but the future looks a whole lot brighter than the past.

A VENERABLE OLD AGE

AS IT APPEARS TO OLDEST GRADUATE OF COLLEGE.

Dr. Gerhardt in his 92nd Year Writes of Passing of Youth to Venerable Old Age.

Rev. Wm. Gerhardt, D. D., of Martinsburg, Va., in years the oldest living graduate of Gettysburg College, serenely traveling toward the sunset in his 92nd year, recently wrote the following interesting short article on "The Passing of Youth to a Venerable Old Age" which appeared in the Martinsburg Evening Journal. The article will be read by Dr. Gerhardt's many friends here with pleasure.

Days of my youth,
Ye have glided away;
Hairs of my youth,
Ye are frosted and gray.
Eyes of my youth,
Your keen sight is no more;
Cheeks of my youth,
Ye are furrowed all o'er.
Strength of my youth,
All your vigor is gone;
Thoughts of my youth,
Your gay visions are flown.

The contemplation of the passing of youth to old age produces thoughts solemn and pathetic to a degree. The infant boy springs into boyhood, hardens into manhood, dwindles down into old age, and then returns unto dust from which it was formed.

The development of the body in ordinary health, continues until a certain period in life, and then becomes subject to retrogression. With the mind it is different. It is progressive in its nature and its advance in development in proportion to the use and application of the means at hand for that purpose, gaining strength and acquiring knowledge from year to year even to old age. And though inroads of disease, or feebleness of sensibility may fetter its power, and partially dim its lustre, yet the fact that the intellect is frequently retained in its pristine vigor in advanced age, is an argument that the mind does not necessarily retrograde in old age.

There are numerous examples of this on record; and these are calculated to encourage the devotees of literature, though advanced in life, still to nurse the fire of genius and toil at their high vocation in the realms of literature.

A few examples will suffice to prove our point; and may those, who early in life have neglected mental improvement, find in the following examples a stimulus to attend to it even in maturer years.

Cato began to study Latin and Greek at 80; Theophrastus' work on the "Character of Men" was written at 90; Ludovico Monaldesco wrote the "Memories of his Times" at the great age of 115; Isaac Walton wrote interesting biographies at 85; Necker, speaking of studies late in life, said, "Three score and ten is an agreeable age for literary work—your mind has not lost its vigor and envy leaves you in peace;" Dryden translated the Iliad at 85; Dr. Johnson at the age of 73, when weak and speechless from paralysis, composed a Latin prayer to test the retention and strength of his mental faculties; Franklin's philosophical pursuits began at about 50; Michael Angelo preserved his creative genius to extreme old age; there is a device of an old man in a go-cart with an hour-glass upon it and the inscription "Ancora Impara," (yet I am learning).

The writer of this article does not lay claim to high literary attainments, but at the age of 92 feels grateful to Divine Providence that while he has his physical drawbacks, his mental faculties are but slightly impaired.

Where the Lions Stopped Railway

Simba station has made history for itself by the numerous attacks on the station staff by lions. It was a matter of common occurrence at one time for the railway traffic manager to receive urgent "clear-the-line" messages over the wires, such as:

"Traffic Manager Nairobi: Lions on platform—train approaching—pointsman up water tank—lions won't let down—station master in office—cannot give line clear to oncoming train—please arrange."

"Traffic Manager Nairobi: Wire station master Makindu to instruct driver up mixed to approach station here with caution as four lions on platform in charge. Am powerless—please arrange," etc.

The traffic manager has many such messages pasted into a book in his office as a memorial of the time when lions disorganized the traffic of the Uganda Railway at Simba.

It was at Simba that Captain Stigaud, F. Z. S., F. R. G. S., made himself famous a few years ago by sitting up all one moonlight night on the water tank in order to rid the station house of several lions that were continually harassing the railway staff. He waited his chance until the early hours of the morning, when out onto the platform stalked a fine lion with two lionesses in attendance. He fired and killed the lion; the others escaped after he had mortally wounded one lioness. Later the other lioness returned to look for her mate, and as she appeared in the open Captain Stigaud fired again, wounding her. As she dragged herself off into the bush he climbed down from his place of vantage in order to follow her, but he had not gone far into the long grass before the wounded animal sprang out suddenly and brought him down, mauling terribly his left arm and shoulder. Then raged a terrific struggle.

THEY NEVER FAIL.

That is What They Say About Them in Gettysburg, and it is Therefore, Reliable.

Another proof, more evidence, Gettysburg testimony to swell the list of local people who endorse the old Quaker remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills.

Read this convincing endorsement of that remarkable preparation:

Mrs. Frank Tawney, 27 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "My son suffered from kidney disease since infancy and probably inherited the trouble. He complained of severe pains in his back and sides, his kidneys were very weak and at times he had but little control over the secretions. Any cold he caught always settled in his kidneys and caused him intense suffering. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the People's Drug Store and upon using them my son improved rapidly. When he had finished the contents of one box, he was without a sign of kidney complaint. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other persons suffering from the same affliction."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

gle for mastery between the Captain, who was a powerful man, and the lioness maddened with pain and rage in the last struggle for existence. The fight ended when Captain Stigaud, with his right arm freed, hit the lioness in the jaw, breaking her jaw bone. He was found next morning by his servants in an unconscious condition, with the dead animal across his body.

Captain Stigaud lived, but it was a close call. He is still shooting big game in Africa.—W. Robert Foran in May Circle Magazine.

Splendid Picture Offer to Readers.

Quite the handsomest articles for home decoration that have yet been offered by a newspaper as inducements to its readers are the series of color art gravures now being distributed by The North American in exchange for a coupon from the Sunday paper and 5 cents.

Counting the cost of the newspaper, the entire price of these color types is 10 cents. Similar reproductions are sold every day in the art stores at $1 or more. The reduced price is due to the fact that The North American in disposing of these works of art is associated with several other large newspapers in the printing of them, and the enormous cost is greatly reduced.

The subject for the first painting issued was "The Forest Fire," a thrilling picture, and most realistic. The next subject will be a reproduction of a handsome landscape at sunset, reproduced with the utmost fidelity to nature's colorings.

Agents for The North American will furnish one of these pictures in exchange for a coupon from Sunday issues and 5 cents in cash.

THE PROGRESSIVE FARMER
TREATMENT OF SEED POTATOES TO PREVENT SCAB.
Do Not Spray the Blossoms for Codling Moth But After the Blossoms Fall.
Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist of Department of Agriculture of Pennsylvania proposes to send to the press news letters containing information for the progressive farmer and pains-taking fruit grower. The following introductory letter was sent the first week in May:
The subject of the treatment of seed potatoes to prevent scab was brought to the attention of the Division of Economic Zoology of the Department of Agriculture of Pennsylvania by R. J. Belt, of Wellsville, York, Co., Pa., Treasurer of the Wells-Whip Company. Mr. Belt treated his potatoes with bichloride of mercury, having dissolved two ounces of corrosive sublimate in 16 gallons of water. Three times this quantity of the mixture was used on 40 bushels of potatoes.
State Zoologist H. A. Surface replied that he prefers formalin to corrosive sublimate for potato scab treatment. This is because the formalin, or formaldehyde, dissolves immediately in water, it being a liquid itself when in the commercial form, and it does not corrode any material by coming in contact with and drying upon it as the corrosive sublimate might do. After having killed the disease germs it evaporates and is gone, so that no evil after effects can come from it. It is quickly and easily prepared, and its action upon one's hand will not be anywhere near as serious as the corrosive sublimate solution.
To prepare the mixture put 30 gallons of water into a barrel, to which add one pint of the formalin solution. This about equals one-half ounce to a gallon. This may appear weak, but it is strong enough to destroy the scab germs. Put the potatoes in bags and the bags into barrels and pour enough of the foregoing solution of formalin and water into the barrel to cover the bags and let stand for an hour. After that take the potatoes out of the bags and let them drain. Other potatoes can be used again and again as long as any remains. It should be kept covered to prevent escape of the fumes or evaporation, and it would be well to strengthen it occasionally by adding a little more of the solution. The potatoes can be treated either before or after cutting, but if they are not to be planted soon, dipping before cutting is best. They can be dried in crates or in barrels, or spread on the barn floor, after the same has been swept completely and scrubbed with a solution of the formalin or bichloride, which ever is being used.
The owners of fruit trees who intend spraying their trees to prevent diseases and kill the codling moth larva are advised by Prof. Surface of the Division of Economic Zoology of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture not to spray the blossoms, but to wait until after the petals have dropped, or more than three-fourths are down. Injury will be caused to the blossoms if they are sprayed when open, but the spraying should not be delayed after the blossoms have fallen. To secure the best results the spray must be applied within six days after the blossoms fall, and a second spraying should be done ten days or two weeks after the first application to prove effectual.
The following are the objections to spraying trees when in bloom:
1. There is no definite pest for which the spray is applicable at that time, and each spraying should be for something definite.
2. The very young fruit is liable to be injured by the spray liquid falling upon it at this time. Spraying when in bloom is a very sure way of thinning the fruit crop, but it is very unsatisfactory and unsatisfactory.

RECIPE MIXED OFTEN
DRUGGISTS HEAR MUCH PRAISE FOR THIS MIXTURE.
Lots of Men and Women Here Had the Simple Home Made Mixture Prepared, Says Druggist.
Some remarkable stories are being told about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.
No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.
This mixture has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the clogged-up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter, overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.
A druggist here who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers' last October stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.
All the druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

THE NEXT CENSUS.
Thousands of enumerators will be employed in the work of taking the next census. The actual work of enumeration will begin on April 15, 1910, instead of June as formerly.
The Director of the Census has made all preparations for the job of counting heads in the United States. In addition to the large force required in the Washington office and the army of enumerators in the field, there will be 330 supervisors, who will direct the work in as many census districts throughout the United States. Except in the large cities, the census districts will be made to conform to Congressional districts.
Members of Congress are already being deluged with applications for census jobs.
The supervisors will receive $1,500 for their work. In addition, they will be given an allowance of $1 for each 1,000 of population enumerated.
Compensation will be paid the enumerators on a per capita basis. They will be paid 2 cents for each name enrolled.
In all cities over 5,000 in population the census must be completed in fifteen days. Thirty days' time in which to finish the work will be allowed supervisors and enumerators operating in outlying territory.

3. Spraying blossoms with poison results in the destruction of bees. Bees are necessary for fertilization and setting of the fruit.
1. The delay of only a short time, or until just after the blossoms fall, gives the proper time for spraying for the codling moth and for plant diseases and does not result in the destruction of fruit or bees. The proper spraying material is the Bordeaux Mixture to which an arsenical poison such as Paris green or arsenate of lead is added. There are two spraying strengths for this liquid according to the hardness of the tree or plant to be sprayed. Spray the apple, pear, quince and potato with the strong formula which calls for 3 lbs. bluestone and 4 lbs. of quick lime in 50 gallons of water with one or two lbs. of arsenate of lead added to this. If Paris green is used, instead of the arsenate of lead, 1 lb. should be used to each 20 gallons.
The weak formula calls for one-half of the above quantities of bluestone, lime and arsenate of lead in 50 gallons of water. This is used on peach and plum trees on account of their tender bark, and on similar delicate plants. Peach and plum trees do not need to be sprayed immediately after blossoming, but these and the grapes should be sprayed for wormy fruit, making the application after the fruit reaches the size of buckshot.

Value of Good Roads to Farmers.
The views entertained by the farming community on the subject of the good roads being built and urged are in many cases in our experience quite different from what was expected. No opposition has been heard but quite a number of farmers had said that in their opinion the roads are being built more for auto use than for any other purpose and that fast auto running on the good roads when built will make them dangerous to travel by the farmers.
The Country Life Commission appointed by President Roosevelt reported some weeks ago that its careful investigation, including personal visits to all sections of the country, and correspondence with 550,000 residents of the country districts as to the most pressing needs of the farmers for the improvement of their condition, shows that public sentiment is unanimous in favor of better roads as a practical means of supplying existing deficiencies in country life.
This Commission point to the direct connection between good roads and the value of farm lands as shown in a striking manner in Bulletin No. 35 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This Bulletin gives the results of an investigation by the Office of Public Roads of that Department relating to public road mileage, revenues, improved roads, and expenditures in the United States in the year 1904, and the information contained therein is of great importance in connection with the movement on behalf of the systematic improvement of the public highways.
The returns from various States show that in nearly every case the States having the highest percentage of improved roads have the largest population per mile of road, thus showing that better roads are a powerful factor in encouraging the settlement of unused lands, especially in sparsely populated sections of the country. Good roads are also an important influence in retaining in the farming districts the desirable elements who might otherwise drift into the towns and cities. As the price of farm lands depends on their productivity, accessibility to markets, and population engaged, or desiring to engage, in agricultural pursuits, it follows that road improvement, by attracting additional settlers, and giving them better facilities for reaching their markets, directly tends to increase the value of all farm lands within the radius of the roads improved.
A comparison of the percentage of the improved roads of the various States shows that the average percentage of the improved roads in all States where farm land is worth less than $20.00 per acre is only 1.8 per cent.; whereas in the States where the acreage value is more than $20.00, improved roads constitute an average of 9 per cent. of the total mileage.

While there may be minor causes of variations in the value of farm lands it is an undoubted fact that as a general rule the higher values of certain States are largely due to their superior roads. Records on file in the Office of Public Roads show that farm land have been known to advance in value from 50 to 500 per cent. on account of the improvement of the roads connecting them with market towns.
When the facts secured by the Department of Agriculture become known to the farmers of the country, and they realize that the establishment of a complete system of properly constructed public roads will have the direct effect of greatly increasing the value of their farms, they will be the foremost advocates of a broad, comprehensive policy of public road improvement by the Nation, States, Counties and Townships.

New Abbey Picture for Harrisburg.
Edwin A. Abbey, the artist of world wide reputation, a native of Pennsylvania, born in Philadelphia, is working at a picture in his London Studio for the Capitol at Harrisburg. He is trying his hand at a picture of the Treaty Elm between William Penn and the Indians and the picture is nearly finished. One who has seen it says he has not idealized the scene. He has taken one of the best-known historical portraits of Penn and reproduced the traditional details of the meeting with the Indians. The elm is introduced with splendid decorative effect and with a close approach to realism. It is a tree on Mr. Abbey's lawn at Fairfield, and the massive trunk forms the "centre of the panel."

Vallance described Penn's treaty with the redmen as "the only league of the kind which was neither sworn to nor broken." That concise tribute from a pessimistic philosopher, who was in the habit of scoffing at every human event, singled out the coalition as unique in the dealings of superior with subject races. Investigators have questioned whether the title to the soil was actually acquired by purchase, and have also raised the objection that the tribes in Pennsylvania were themselves subject to the Five Nations and powerless for offering resistance to the white invaders. The tradition that Quaker rule began with conciliation and equitable treatment of the native population has survived every assault from skeptics. Mr. Abbey reproduces the familiar scene in a decorative panel for the chamber of the House of Representatives at Harrisburg, Pa., with a group of companions and attendants, has landed in boats on the shore near by and baled under a huge elm to exchange friendly greetings with the Indian chiefs. He is of middle height and has luxuriant auburn hair, a heavy chin and glittering eyes. He wears his sober but well-cut gray and blue scarf with a courtier's grand manner. One hand is held out to the young chief robed in a deer-skin, and the other holds the treaty which is to be sanctioned. The older chiefs are seated on the ground or silently looking on. It is an animated scene, with a most decorative use of grays, browns and blues, with glints of red in the Indian costumes.
The date assigned for the meeting is October 24. There is golden leafage on the elm above the massive stem, and there are richer and more radiant autumn tints on either side. For once Mr. Abbey has been sparing in the use of red, and the color scheme is cool and pale. It is a fine composition. The scene is quietly portrayed in soft grays and rich browns, so as to comport with the sober Quaker feeling of peace and good will. The atmosphere of melodrama has been left out. The sky is roseate with promise, and there is greensward for natives and invaders around the hospitable elm. If the panel lacks the dramatic action which Mr. Abbey ordinarily imparts to his groups of figures, it is as restful and serene as a Quaker meeting, where every one is silent and a feeling of fraternal confidence prevails. The two central figures are admirably drawn. The stalwart chief, in his deerskins, has the dignity of forest life and manly independence. The face of Penn is gentle and persuasive, and his carriage is that of a leader of men, accustomed to court functions and royal interviews.

This large panel, which is now in Mr. Abbey's studio and may be exhibited at the Spring Academy, if a wall sufficiently spacious can be found for it, is to be one of three decorative works for the House of Representatives at Harrisburg. A corresponding panel will portray the historic scene of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Between them there will be a decorative work symbolizing the rise and triumph of Pennsylvania as a Commonwealth. While these panels are on a smaller scale than the eight lunettes and circular canvases already completed for the decoration of the dome, they are even more difficult works, since two of them are among the most familiar subjects in American history, and originality of treatment is virtually impracticable. As decorations for a large legislative chamber, they are likely to be most effective.

Gordon's Last Chance.

By TAYLOR WHITE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Jimmie, do you speak slang?" demanded Maud Tolliver suddenly as her small brother came into the room.

"Do I walk on my feet?" demanded Jimmie in surprise. "Pipe your lay, angel face. I'll get you somehow, even if you speak all to the middle. Throw it off your chest."

"It's this way," explained Maud. "You know Mr. Gordon?"

"I've seen him once or twice," admitted Jimmie, with a grin. Gordon was a regular visitor at the Tolliver home.

"Papa wants me to marry him," explained Maud. "He's so strict and proper that I hate him. I thought that if I were to talk slang and act up, perhaps he would leave me in peace. He hates a slangy girl. He said so last night."

Jimmie grinned appreciatively. He had no great liking for the eminently staid and correct Gordon. He hated men whose suits always looked as though it was the first time they had been worn.

His own preference was for Barry Spaulding, who occasionally offered him a cigarette and who talked to him precisely as though he was a grownup.

Gordon never seemed to see him, never laughed and joked, and Jimmie entered into the conspiracy with his whole heart after being assured that Maud would never disclose the source of her education in slang.

Before the week was out Gordon looked troubled. He was very much in love with Maud after his own fashion. There was no want of real affection, but Gordon was no gallant wooer. He had been accepted by the family, and in his quiet, patient fashion he was laying siege to Maud's heart.

He had fancied he had been making headway until she developed a trick of interlarding her speech with slang expressions.

At first he was shocked, but as Maud acquired proficiency and grew more and more slangy Gordon withdrew from his campaign. Though he loved the girl as much as ever, he assured himself that a wife who used slang was utterly impossible.

In secret Maud gloated over the fact, but bore herself demurely when her father sharply questioned her concerning her treatment of Gordon, for the latter's visits had fallen off, and, though Gordon had pleaded business as an excuse, Mr. Tolliver had an idea that there was something else that might explain the lover's sudden lack of interest.

Then fate took a hand, and so it happened that Jimmie Tolliver, crossing the avenue, slipped on the muddy paving and fell directly in front of a rapidly advancing automobile.

There was a cry of horror from the spectators, but one man sprang forward and with an easy movement grasped the boy's arm and carried him to safety.

For a moment Jimmie was too dazed to comprehend; then he slowly came to realize that Gordon, unmoved as ever, stood beside him, answering the questions of the crowd, but refusing to give his name.

"All right, old man?" he asked as he saw that Jimmie was pulling himself together. "Suppose we move on. This crowd is a little too eager."

He signaled a passing taxicab and directed the driver to go to a tailor's where Jimmie's muddled garments might be made presentable. The rush of cold air drove the last of the cobwebs from Jimmie's brain, and, gazing admiringly at Gordon, he decided that Maud was wrong in her estimate of the man. There was fire under the ice, red blood beneath the waxen, immobile expression, and Jimmie's heart warmed to his rescuer.

"Say, Bo," he demanded suddenly. "are you still dead nuts on Maud?"

"I esteem your sister very highly," admitted Gordon.

"You're all right," declared Jimmie admiringly. "If you want to win cast your port ear over this way and make a noise like a listen."

The noise of a listener was continued long after the visit to the tailor's was concluded. Gordon's face was as expressionless as ever, but there was a twinkle in his eye.

Some evenings later Maud, coming downstairs, reached the lower hall just as Gordon was admitted by the butler. Jimmie had been cautioned under pain of losing his promised reward to say nothing of his rescue, so it was merely "that tiresome Kenneth Gordon" whom Maud greeted with perfunctory cordiality.

"I butted in to tear off a piece of talk with the boss bloomer wearer. Is he in?" asked Gordon.

"If you mean my father"—began Maud icily.

"That's the guy," interrupted Gordon. "Will you tell the delegate from the wax works to ask him to grease his heels and slide down here?"

"I will go myself," offered Maud nervously. Gordon was as coldly correct in appearance as ever, but perhaps he was drunk.

"Nix on the scamper," declared Gordon, raising a detaining hand. "Use the butler for the wireless, and we'll call out some conversation while he makes a home run."

"I must go," explained Maud. "I forgot something upstairs, and I must see about it at once."

"Tell it to wait," commanded Gordon. "I'm the head of the processor

Just now. Don't you bother about the water carriers."

"But"—began Maud. And Gordon interrupted again.

"Don't be a goat and butt in," he urged. "Hit the plumb."

He pointed to a chair, and timidly Maud seated herself. As she had led the way into the parlor the butler had disappeared, supposing that he would not be required further. To ring for him now would only make a scandal among the servants. Perhaps her father would come down in a few minutes.

He usually spent the evening in the library when he did not go to the club, and in either event he must pass the open door. If the worst came she could call for the butler, but meanwhile perhaps she could induce Gordon to leave quietly. She took the chair indicated, sitting nervously on the edge, ready to spring up and run should occasion demand.

"It doesn't cost any more to have a whole chair," reminded Gordon as he sank into a seat between her and the door. "I want you to put me wise to some things. What's your grouch against me?"

"I have no grouch," protested Maud eagerly. "Indeed, I like you very much."

"I never saw you on the front steps waiting for me," said Gordon grimly. "Let it come out with a rush. I'm in wrong. How can I square myself?"

"There is nothing to be squared," insisted Maud. "I don't see how you can imagine such a thing."

"Naughty, naughty," reproved Gordon, shaking his forefinger at her admonishingly. "Look here, kiddo, put me next! You don't like me, and I like you. I can't help it if I've got a frozen face. It was wished on me, and it's none of my doings. Tell me how I can loosen up so you'll have a yin for me."

"A yin?" repeated Maud uncertainly. This was a word not in Jimmie's vocabulary.

"A yin—a yearning," explained Gordon. "I want you to think that I'm the whole works, and you won't even let me be the second hand. Fix me up so I can come into the big tent and be a part of the program. I'm the 'what is it' out in the freak tent, and I don't like the job. I may not be quite your style, but I can learn. I'm the star pupil in the little red school-house, and I'll always be at the head of the class if you'll be the teacher. I love to love my teacher."

Maud sprang to her feet, her eyes blazing.

"Mr. Gordon," she said coldly, "I will not prolong this interview. I do not know what is the matter. I do not want to know, but you must go, please. I cannot listen to you when you talk this way."

Gordon had sprung to his feet when Maud rose, and now he smiled down into the flushed, angry face.

"It seems," he said a little sadly, "that my latest effort is no more successful than the earlier attempts. They say that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, and yet you are not pleased."

"What do you mean?" gasped Maud in astonishment.

"You learned slang for my benefit," he reminded. "When I do the same thing you object. Of course my slang is more pronounced than your own, but then you have only Jimmie, while I have the valuable assistance of several elevator boys, my office boy and the janitor's son, who qualifies as an expert. You use slang to disgust me—with yourself. I am using it to disgust you—with slang."

"And you know?" gasped Maud. "Jimmie has told?"

"Be it said to his credit that the temptation was great," said Gordon gently. "Do not blame the lad. He meant well in giving me my last chance to win you. He saw beneath the surface and was sorry for his part. I foolishly imagined that if I could excel you in the use of slang I might startle you into an interest that I see now you never can feel. It was a foolish experiment, Miss Tolliver, and I ask your pardon for having bored and then frightened you. It was my last chance, and I hoped that it might succeed."

"I gather from Jimmie's remarks that you fear paternal pressure will be brought to bear on you. I beg to assure you that I will so contrive the situation as not to involve you. I am—sorry that—the last chance—failed."

The little pauses in his speech were Gordon's only evidences of emotion. They were only little halts in the evenness of his soft, even voice, but they showed the strength of feeling, and it touched Maud with a sudden emotion.

"Don't go," she said softly, laying a detaining hand upon his arm. "Perhaps the last chance has not—I mean"—But she could say no more. Gordon's arms were outstretched, and in his face, no longer expressionless, there was a look of such appeal that she suffered herself to be drawn within their protecting circle. The last chance had won.

Falling in Love.

I do not doubt that as the world goes on a deeper sense of moral responsibility in the matter of marriage will grow up among us. But it will not take the false direction of ignoring these our profoundest and holiest instincts. Marriage for money may go, marriage for rank may go, marriage for position may go, but marriage for love, I believe and trust, will last forever. Men in the future will probably feel that a union with their cousins or near relations is positively wicked; that a union with those too like them in person or disposition is at least undesirable; that a union based upon considerations of wealth or any other consideration save considerations of immediate natural impulse is base and disgraceful. But to the end of time they will continue to feel in spite of doctrinaires that the voice of nature is better far than the voice of the lord chancellor or the royal society and that the instinctive desire for a particular helpmate is a surer guide for the ultimate happiness both of the race and of the individual than any amount of deliberate consultation. It is not the foolish fancies of youth that will have to be got rid of, but the foolish, wicked and mischievous interference of parents or outsiders.—Grant Allen.

Know the Sound of Wood.

There was an argument on a cricket field in a village near Nottingham, England, which interrupted the game for some time. The match was being played between the local tradesmen of the village. All went well until the bowler, who was the village constable, a man over six feet tall, sent a ball which bumped up from the ground and hit the village butcher, who was batting and who was exceedingly fat and perspiring freely, on the head. The wicket keeper, a remarkably thin and agile man, who was the village grocer, caught the ball and yelled, "Ow's that?"

"Out!" shouted the village baker, who possessed only one eye.

"Hi say now!" roared the fat butcher, who refused to have it so. "But hit it me on the 'ead."

"Hi don't know where hit 'it you," responded the umpire, who was the village undertaker, "but Hi knows the sound of wood when Hi 'ears hit, so bout you go."

The Tricksters.

"Political tricksters always give themselves away," said a congressman. "Their methods remind me of the two men who wanted to sell their corpses for dissection. These two men, miserably clad, called on the dean of a medical college in New York.

"We are both on the verge of starvation, sir," the spokesman said. "We are well on in years, and it is clear that we haven't much longer to live. Would you care to purchase our bodies for your dissecting room?"

"The dean hesitated.

"It is an odd proposition," he muttered.

"But it is occasionally done," said the spokesman in an eager voice.

"Well," said the dean, "we might arrange it. What price do you ask?"

"Over in Philadelphia," said the spokesman, "they gave us $40."—New York Tribune.

Not So Bad as She Feared.

"George," she whispered as she crept a little closer and placed her head against his left hand second story vest pocket—"George, I want to ask you a question, a very important one. Why do you allude to papa as a pirate? Surely you must have some good reason for doing so?"

"I have, indeed," responded George, with a dreamy, faraway look in his eyes. "Pirates board people, you know, and I expect your father, if my plans work all right, to eventually board me."

"Oh, how clever you are, George! Do you know, I was awfully afraid you were going to get off that ancient chestnut about his being such an old freebooter, and I'm so glad you didn't, because all the fellows I've had have said that, and I was longing for something new."

A Natural Cross.

One of the most beautiful natural rock carvings in the world is the Southern Cross, on the island of Grand Manan, in the bay of Fundy. It stands at the head of a ledge of rocks jutting into the bay from the foot of one of the immense cliffs at the southern end of the Grand Manan. Its shape is that of an almost perfect cross.

Corroborated.

"Though many people think so who hear me play," said the long haired amateur, with studied carelessness, "I have no intention of becoming a professional musician. I play merely to kill time."

"I knew that as soon as I heard you," enigmatically replied one of his listeners.—Kansas City Independent.

Said What She Meant.

"Oh, I am so awfully ashamed of myself!" said Edith Jones to her dearest girl chum. "When Henry proposed to me last night I intended to say, 'So sudden!' but I quite lost my head and exclaimed, 'At last!'"

An Exception.

"Animals," said the teacher, "frequently become attached to people, but plants never do."

"How about burs, teacher?" queried the small boy at the foot of the class.—Chicago News.

Hard to Tell.

FRUIT GROWERS IN SESSION

PASS RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORY OF DECEASED MEMBERS.

Subjects Helpful to the Fruit Growing Industry were Considered and Discussed.

The Fruit Growers' Association of Adams County held its 63rd monthly meeting in Fruit Growers' Hall, Gettysburg, Saturday evening the 8th inst. Eight new names were added to the rolls, increasing membership to one hundred and thirty-two. After transaction of usual routine business, the following resolutions were read and after general expression of approval, were both unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our much esteemed friend, John H. Peters, one of the charter members of this association; and

Whereas, The influence of his faithful and almost constant attendance at our meetings, greeting all with a pleasant smile and hearty handshake, together with his ever-ready, good-natured and effective participation in debate on all matters of importance has done much toward the building up of our association, particularly during the early days when a stubborn, persevering fight was necessary to prevent the total collapse of our undertaking; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we place upon our minutes this record of appreciation of his willing and valued service and an expression of the serious loss this association and this community have sustained; and be it further

Resolved, That we present to his family a copy of these resolutions and extend to them our sincere sympathy.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our valued friend and esteemed fellow member, John A. McDermid; and

Whereas, His valued assistance, particularly as a member of the Legislative Committee has done much to further the work of this association; therefore, be it

Resolved, that we place upon our minutes this expression of appreciation of his valuable co-operation and that we extend to his family our heartfelt sympathy together with a copy of these resolutions.

The proper use of crimson clover as a cover crop and soil improver was presented by Wm. S. Adams and discussed at considerable length by members. A general report on the conditions of fruit bloom was made by all members. The outlook at this time is very encouraging, apple both summer and winter, promise a full crop. The same conditions were reported for cherry and plum. Peach are fairly well set and the present outlook seems to promise about seventy-five per cent. of a full crop. Pear are only lightly set, probably forty per cent.

The matter of proper time and manner to spray for codling moth and fungous diseases in order to produce best results was freely discussed and considerable emphasis placed upon the importance of doing spraying immediately after drop of bloom, or even before it has all fallen using as high pressure as can be produced. Several members reported experience in other localities in spraying when trees are in full bloom and some experiment on this line will be undertaken this year but until the safety of this plan can be more fully established by experience it is not recommended for general use. Practically everyone in the fruit belt who has fruit to any extent, is planning to spray it thoroughly with standard preparations, which, except for particularly unfavorable weather conditions during the growing season, sustains the prediction that Adams county will have the largest and finest crop of apples it has ever grown.

This association is continuing its past policy of using every effort to advertise the fruit of Adams county so as to attract the best grade of buyers. This entails quite a little expense and every fruit grower in the county should lend his assistance by joining the organization. The annual dues are only $1.00 and all income is expended for the benefit of the fruit interest. The writer will be glad to propose any names sent him.

MISFORTUNE FOLLOWS FAMILY

ABENOTVILLE, May 10.—On Tuesday evening, April 29, Paul O., the 10-year old son of J. Frank Carbaugh, in getting over a fence slipped, causing him to fall and break both bones of the right arm about three inches above the wrist, also dislocated the wrist. Dr. Merriam adjusted the fracture and the boy is doing as well as can be expected. The Carbaugh family seem to be an unfortunate one. It will be remembered that three years ago seven out of nine had typhoid fever, five being down at one time. On the 8th of December one year ago one son was operated on in Chambersburg for appendicitis and on the 8th of January another one was operated on in the Hahnemann Hospital for the same disease, the former died on the 11th of December and now this misfortune has fallen upon the small boy.

Ex-County Commissioner John F. Bushey had a new roof put on his large barn on his home farm near this place and made other improvements. J. Andrew Kane also had his large barn on his farm roofed and built a smoke house and did other repairs about his home in Franklin township. The two stores in this place will be closed on Ascension Day.

Rev. D. T. Koser is in attendance at the Lutheran classis now in session in East Berlin.

Katrine

By ELINOR MACARTNEY LANE

AUTHOR OF "NANCY STAIR"

In this novel a new heroine has come into her own, the most beautiful and compelling figure that the author has given us. The romance opens amid historic surroundings in North Carolina, where Francis Ravenel meets Katrine and idyllic scenes pass before the reader among the roses of the South. The action changes to Paris and an atmosphere of art and intrigue, and again to New York, with the scenes of a great business battle in the background. It is a great romance that Mrs. Lane has presented, a man awakened to realities by a woman's power, but most of all the romance not only of a woman's triumph but of an all-conquering love.
